Fund Key Points

Thrivent Small Cap Stock Fund uses a disciplined fundamental process, supported by a proprietary quantitative approach.

Quantitative screens

There are over 2,500 small capitalization companies (less than $4.5 billion in market cap) traded in the United States. The portfolio management team categorizes the companies into homogeneous groups, based on fundamental characteristics rather than just sectors, allowing for more meaningful comparisons. The team then filters the companies using a proprietary quantitative model appropriate for each group and each area of fundamental research.

Fundamental research

Companies that pass the quantitative screens are judged by the portfolio managers on fundamental criteria in three broad areas: valuation, operating performance, and market sentiment. By looking for compelling valuations, improving operations, and differing assessments between Wall Street and the portfolio management team, the team strives to identify financially sound companies that have capable management and an improving fundamental outlook.

Sell discipline & managing risk

In addition to the rigorous process for stock selection, the team employs an equally disciplined process for selling or reducing holdings in the portfolio. A stock may be sold when the team considers it overvalued, at the peak of its business cycle or that Wall Street is too optimistic. They manage risk by reviewing exposure to sectors and capitalization levels relative to the benchmark, and to factors that may cut across sectors.

Qualitative Investment Approach

SEEKING TO ADD VALUE THROUGH STOCK SELECTION

● Valuation

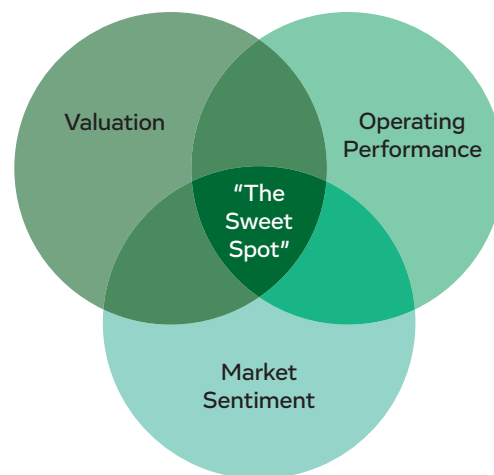

Target 30% to 50% price appreciation over 2 to 3 years

● Operating Performance

Growing revenues and stable or improving returns on capital

● Market Sentiment

What does the team believe that Wall Street does not fully appreciate?

“ We seek to identify cheap, well-run companies that have been neglected by the market. That gives us a fertile list of quality companies with growth potential that we focus our fundamental research on.”

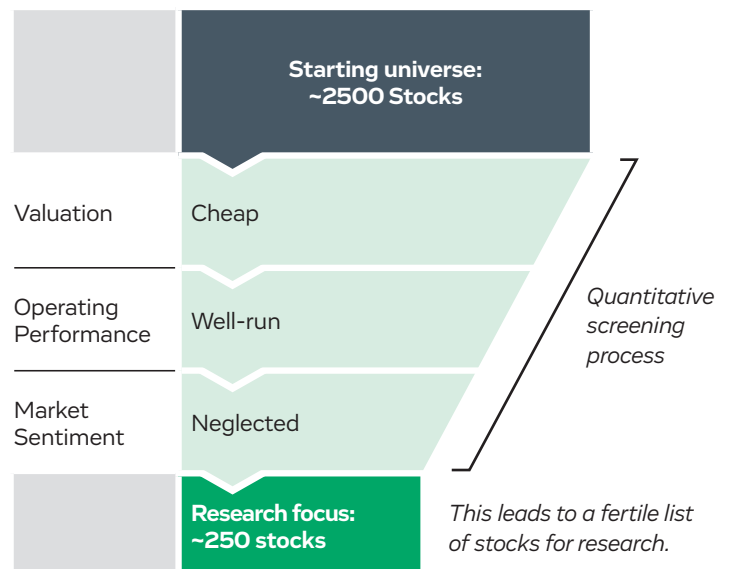

Quantitative Screens Inform Short List for Research

FOCUSING RESEARCH CAPABILITIES ON THE SUBSET WITH THE MOST POTENTIAL

The starting point in our process is a quantitative screen that seeks to separate out the companies with characteristics we believe can be detrimental to long term performance. Those characteristics fall under the broad concepts of valuation, operating performance, and market sentiment, which are the focus of our qualitative process as well.

We believe companies that are a good value, well-run, and neglected by the market have the best potential to outperform the broader index over time.

The remainder and majority of our process is the fundamental research of companies identified by the quantitative screens, which is outlined on the previous page.

Fund Risks: The Fund primarily invests in securities of small companies. Smaller, less seasoned companies often have greater price volatility, lower trading volume, and less liquidity than larger, more established companies. The value of the Fund is influenced by factors impacting the overall market, certain asset classes, certain investment styles, and specific issuers. The Fund may incur losses due to incorrect assessments of investments by its investment adviser.

Investing in a mutual fund involves risks, including the possible loss of principal. The prospectus and summary prospectus contain more complete information on the investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses of the fund, and other information, which investors should read and consider carefully before investing.
